

CONTENTS

Introduction	11
1 The 50/50 method
1.1 Stop being a good girl	15
1.2 Creating your personal plan	20
1.3 How 50/50 are you?	23
PART I A GOOD START	25
A good start begins long before your first day in a new job. Choosing the right job and the right organization are crucial. The same applies to the right work culture. All must be a perfect match. Use your first hundred days to create the foundation for your future success. Carefully scrutinizing your new organization will get you there.
2 Choosing a new job	26
2.1 Seeking the right work culture	26
2.2 Being aware of compromises	27
2.3 Taking off your blinkers	28
3 Your first hundred days	31
3.1 Swallowing the euphoria	31
3.2 Staging a proper farewell	32
3.3 Managing expectations	34
3.4 Continuing in the same organization	35
3.5 Identifying the issues and the players	37
3.6 Scrutinizing the work culture	37
3.7 Learning and unlearning	39
3.8 Day 101 and after	41

PART II	A GOOD MINDSET	43
	A good mindset is key for a great performance. Always focus on the right direction. This requires strategic thinking and the willingness to make a difference. Do not get stuck in wishful thinking, but deal with reality. It makes solving tough issues much easier.
4	From knowledge worker to strategist	44
4.1	A difficult transition	44
4.2	In the grey growth zone	45
4.3	Changing gears	46
4.4	Towards a new comfort zone	46
4.5	Stop doing everything yourself	51
5	Making a difference	53
5.1	Your motivation is your concern	53
5.2	Change: the new standard	54
5.3	Working non-incrementally	55
5.4	Leading instead of managing	59
5.5	Being optimistic	60
5.6	Leading change	61
6	Getting a grip on reality	64
6.1	Morality: a bad advisor	64
6.2	Avoiding impotence	65
6.3	Dealing with reality	66

PART III A GOOD APPROACH	69
It takes endless efforts to learn the right approach. Making a good work plan, taking the right decisions, setting priorities and carrying out negotiations: they all require the right approach. Get a grip on the unwritten rules. And exert your authority. Your authority is the standard for your success.
7 Making a good work plan	70
7.1 Knowing what you want	70
7.2 Aiming high	72
7.3 Taking risks	73
7.4 Making astute analyses	73
7.5 Drawing up your work plan	75
7.6 Dotted the 'i's.	76
8 Decisions, priorities and negotiations	79
8.1 Daring to take decisions	79
8.2 Important and unimportant decisions	80
8.3 Organizing a successful execution	82
8.4 Setting priorities	83
8.5 Smart negotiating	85
9 Playing the game	89
9.1 Playing along	89
9.2 The glass ceiling: an empty phrase	90
9.3 Maintaining your credibility	91
9.4 Using the unwritten rules	93
10 Authority replaces power	99
10.1 It is all about authority	99
10.2 Being the leader	102
10.3 Working with a team	103
10.4 Managing your boss	106
10.5 If things get difficult	107

PART IV TAKING GOOD CARE OF YOURSELF 111

Taking good care of yourself is a cornerstone for success. Make proper use of your energy and your time. Organize your visibility and learn to deal with setbacks. The better you feel, the better your work will be.

11 Energy and time 112

- 11.1 Getting rid of energy drainers 112
- 11.2 Keeping fit 114
- 11.3 Arranging top help 115
- 11.4 Cherishing your time 116
- 11.5 Planning your time 118

12 Visibility and success 124

- 12.1 Visibility is crucial 124
- 12.2 Tackling problems 125
- 12.3 Convincing and selling 126
- 12.4 Meetings and presentations 129
- 12.5 Gathering support 130

13 Setbacks 133

- 13.1 Solving setbacks 133
- 13.2 Acknowledging mistakes 134
- 13.3 Managing your limitations 135
- 13.4 Being in the wrong position 137
- 13.5 Fear of dismissal 138
- 13.6 Fighting the funnel 139

PART V	GOOD LEADERSHIP	143
	Great leaders are not born overnight. Good leadership means continuous learning. That starts with the skills you need. Accept that leadership is always under scrutiny. Inclusive leadership, where collaboration is key, has the future. And that is something women are good at.
14	Learning	144
14.1.	Being curious, humble and sensible	144
14.2	Your favourite way of learning	145
14.3	Learning from adversity	147
14.4	Learning from others	148
14.5	Creating a learning organization	149
15	Leadership	152
15.1	Leadership is a relational matter	152
15.2	The six leadership skills	153
15.3	Inclusive leadership	157

PART VI A GOOD FUTURE 161

A good future is something you can only build yourself. Work towards landing your dream job. Make yourself known to the outside world and create a vertical network. Your reputation often precedes you: it is yours to build.

16 Landing your dream job 162

- 16.1 Careers with broken lines 162
- 16.2 Searching for your dream job 163
- 16.3 Choosing your dream job 167

17 Promoting yourself 171

- 17.1 Building a reputation 171
- 17.2 Creating a network 173
- 17.3 Vertical networking 174
- 17.4 Online presence 176
- 17.5 Using headhunters 177
- 17.6 Having your resume in order 179

18 Finally: you got this! 181

- 18.1 Keep using the 50/50 method 181
- 18.2 The world is yours 183

Literature 185

About the author 189